> DISCLAIMER: Oookay, the idea of this belongs to Jenny Sun, but I've altered it. Happy now? ~falls over~ <hr>

My head was overcrowd

With feelings I allowed

To enter my lonely heart

I felt so apart

From what happened on the start

And the thoughts of him stood

And wouldn't drift away like they should

Oh, how I wish he was safe

Whenever I saw a hawk

I sprang up with a start

Hoping he was there

Safe and sound, but he was not there

Oh, how I wish he was next to me

And never flee

But I learned from our human life

That there are many difficulties along the way

In which I would just crack up

Because he is an "it"

And someone I couldn't forget

If we were ever in a _real_ relationship

And he did somehow flip

I think I'll be in pain

And probably go insane

So I told myself millions of times

"Go, concentrate on all your work and create your future with happy-times, but don't ruin your life because of a relationship with a bird."
